GLOBAL JET CONCEPT

Airbus Elite enters
the fleet

A stunning ACJ318 has joined the charter fleet of the Geneva, Switzerland-headquartered Global Jet Concept Company. The boutique jet operator has seen the demand for VVIP large cabin aircraft grow over the past years, notably in the flourishing Middle East market. The ACJ318 Elite combines large range (close to a nine-hour and fifteen-minute autonomy) with a very impressive baggage capacity. This is a critical point for customers wishing to travel with a large amount of luggage at maximum passenger capacity. With this later addition, the company will operate 4 ACJs available for charter, while managing a total of 8 Airbus aircraft. "We have an extensive knowledge in managing VVIP airliners and our crews are qualified far beyond standards. We guarantee a maximum safety and an unrivalled high-end service on board," comments a spokesperson for the company. Based at Paris-Le Bourget airport, with a high-flexibility dispatch, the Elite aircraft is ready and available to serve any demanding request.
